CINCINNATI,
SUNDAY MORNING, APRIL 16.

The Assassination of President Lincoln and Secretary Seward.

Our citizens yesterday morning awoke to the realization of a dreadful horror. Murder most foul and horrible laid violent hands upon a nation's head and the State's Prime Minister. In the Capital of a great people, honored by the name of the "Father of his Country." The air was thick with direful rumors, and men looked in each other's faces and read strange matter therein. The papers were eagerly seized and while one read the tragic intelligence others gathered around and held their breath, while horror was depicted on every countenance. But one feeling seemed to pervade each breast—unmitigated horror. The details of the bloody deed went from mouth to mouth, but they could hardly be exaggerated—murder had done its worst in slaying one to whom the eyes of the entire nation was directed, for all considered the life of Abraham Lincoln, at the present time more valuable than that of any other man, and there were those who would willingly have laid down their lives and bared their bosoms to the assassin's bullet, if by so doing he could have been spared to the country.

Some two or three years ago, a Richmond paper used language to the following effect: "That if the South was defeated, like Sampson of old, it would feel for the pillars of the temple." Blind, indeed, was the South if this has been their work. And who can doubt it. Finding they can not rule, they have resolved to ruin. But that ruin will fall with ten-fold violence upon their own heads. They have killed their best friend, one who was most lenient to them as an erring and misguided people. Terrible will be the retribution visited upon their heads. This dreadful deed will unite the North, and his blood will cement men of all classes, and every name of a Southerner will become a by-word and a reproach to all people.

We do not desire to draw upon our imagination, and make unreasonable comparisons, but is there not a striking coincidence in the fact that upon the same day that the Christian world recognizes as that upon which Christ our Saviour was crucified by his enemies, Abraham Lincoln was assassinated by the enemies of the best Government God ever gave to men.

The day on which Christ was nailed to the accursed tree, of all other days in the year, was chosen by accursed traitors to murder one who had done more for his country's welfare than any man now living. One who had won the affections of the people, despite detraction through and the envenomed shafts of malicious traitors.

Not satisfied with the death of the nation's head, the life of Secretary Seward, which has been hovering between the seen and the unseen world, was also taken, and a defenceless man stabbed in his bed. Oh! most brave were the murderers! One of their victims was shot from behind, and the other in his bed. Is this another specimen of that boasted chivalry which murders prisoners in cold blood, and fires the dwellings of helpless women and children? Is this more of the work of hands that fired the hotels of New York, where defenceless men and helpless innocence had sought a refuge. It is part and parcel of the same villainy, and as there is a living God it will not be permitted to go unpunished. This horror never had a parallel. It stands alone in its dreadful reality and we search in vain the records of the past for something to liken it unto.

Friday was a most beautiful day; but late at night before, as if weeping at the horrid deed shed copious tears [illegible] during the greater portion of Saturday the sun was obscured by dense clouds, and the windows of heaven were opened, and one could almost fancy that angels' tears were mingled with those of weeping humanity.

Cause, indeed, have we to mourn as a nation—for never was a nation so bereaved. The honest man and the patriot is no more—

"Death, calm death,
Now folds him in his leaden arms."

This is not an individual calamity, but a nation's affliction; and, though all our grief can not restore the dead we can but grieve—although not yet in its full force can we appreciate our loss. When two such men as Abraham Lincoln and William H. Seward die on the same day, by the assassin's hand, the nation may well put on sack cloth and ashes, and her citizens go mourning through the land.

"All at [illegible] now—adust—wave flows on wave,
But the sea of ice not!"

An Enthused City.

Our citizens were perfectly wild with excitement on Monday night last, over the news of the surrender of Lee. The bells throughout the city, at all accessible, were vigorously rung while the thunder of cannon reverberated from street to street. One enthusiastic party went through the city trailing a cannon after them firing at intervals, awakening the sleeping citizens. It was planted at one of the entrances to the Fifth Street Market House, and fired through with stunning effect. Gas lamps were shattered in divers localities, and at last a proposition was made, and carried out in part, to take the cannon up into the second story of a large building on Fourth street, and fire it from one of the windows. The gun was dragged up the steps, but better counsel prevailing, it was not fired. From midnight until early dawn the streets were filled with enthusiastic men, women and children, and bon fires blazed in every direction. We doubt if just such a scene ever occurred before in our good Queen City, or ever will again.

☞ It is alleged that General Warren has demanded a Court of Inquiry to investigate the cause of his removal. Sheridan was his Court of Inquiry, he did not like his tardy movements and sent him to the rear. He is, no doubt willing to end can't "answer well the death he gave him."

☞ We wonder if the Enquirer, of this city is still of the opinion that the rebels can never be conquered, or has it changed its mind since the news of the surrender of Lee?

The Assassination at Washington.

From Telegraphic Dispatches to the Daily Papers of the 15th.

In anticipation that our late dispatches will bring us additional particulars of the terrible tragedy at Washington, we have clipped from the daily papers of yesterday the more important events as telegraphed from the capital, principally from the Gazette.

[From the Gazette's special correspondent.]

I obtained from Quartermaster General Meigs the following account of the assassination:

About half past ten o'clock P. M., a man dressed in a dark suit and hat entered the private box in which Mr. Lincoln and his party, consisting of Mrs. Lincoln, Mrs. Harris (daughter of Senator Harris,) and Captain Rathbone, of Albany, were seated. Immediately on opening the door, he advanced toward Mr. Lincoln with a six barreled revolver in his right hand, and a bowie knife in his left. The president, who was intent upon the play, did not notice his intrusion and the gentlemen who were seated beside him rose to inquire the reason of his entry. Before he had time to ask the assassin what he wanted, he fired one charge from his revolver, which took effect in the back of the President's head. The ball passed through and came out at the right temple.

Captain Rathbone attempted to arrest the murderer, and in trying to do so, received a shot in his arm. The assassin then leaped from the box upon the stage. Before he disappeared behind the curtain, he turned, and with a fiendish and tone, waved his knife and shouted "Sic semper tyrannis!".

So sudden was the affair, that for some moments after its occurrence the audience supposed that it was a part of the play, and were only undeceived when it was announced from the stage, by the managers, that the President of the United States had been shot. The shock fell upon the audience like a thunder-bolt, and loud cries were immediately raised to kill or capture the assassin.

The scene which ensued cannot be described. Men and women rushed for the doors, crying and shouting for vengeance on the murderer. The murderous emissary of the slave power escaped easily and rapidly from the theater mounted a horse, and escaped. The President, who was insensible, was carried out and taken to a house opposite the theater. Mrs. Lincoln fainted in the box and was borne out after her husband.

The mass of the evidence to-night is that J. Wilkes Booth committed the crime. Whoever it is there are reasons for thinking that the same bold and bloody hand attempted the life of Secretary Seward. His wounds were made by a knife as big as that waved on the stage, and the Virginia motto sic semper tyrannis, spoken.

The following was telegraphed to the Associated Press, in relation to the attack on Secretary Seward:

The facts are substantially as follows: About ten o'clock a man rang the bell, and the call having been answered by a colored servant, he said he had come from Dr. Verdi, Secretary Seward's family physician, with a prescription, at the same time holding in his hand a small piece of folded paper, and saying, in answer to a refusal, that he must see the Secretary, as he was intrusted with the particular directions concerning the medicine.

He still insisted on going up, although repeatedly informed that no one could enter the chamber. He pushed the servant aside, and walked heavily toward the Secretary's room. He was there met by Mr. Frederick Seward, of whom he demanded to see the Secretary, making the same representation which he did to the servant. What further passed in the way of colloquy is not known, but the man struck him on the head with a billy, severely injuring the skull, and felling him almost senseless.

The assassin then rushed into the chamber and attacked Major Seward, Paymaster U. S. A. and Mr. Hansell, a messenger of the State Department, and two male nurses, disabling them, and rushed upon the Secretary, who was lying in bed in the room, and inflicted three stabs in the neck, but severing, it is thought, no arteries, though he bled profusely. The assassin then rushed down stairs, mounted his horse at the door, and rode off before an alarm could be sounded, and in the same manner as the assassin of the President.

There is evidence that Secretary Stanton was also marked for assassination.

On receipt of the intelligence at the War Department of the attack on the President, two employees of the Department were sent to summon the Secretary. Just as they approached [illegible] tree box in front of the house, and ran away. It is well known to be the custom of the Secretary to go from the department to his house between nine and twelve o'clock P. M., and usually unattended. It is supposed that the assassin intended to shoot him as he entered the house, but failed, from the fact that Mr. Stanton remained at home during the evening.

It had been announced in the Washington papers that General Grant would be at Ford's Theater on Friday night, but he took the cars for New Jersey. There is but little doubt but the conspiracy also included his assassination.

The following additional we clip from the Times of last evening:

Secretary Stanton telegraphed to General Dix: It appears from a letter found in Booth's trunk that the murder was planned before the 4th of March, but fell through then because the accomplice backed out until Richmond could be heard from. Booth and his accomplice were at the livery stable at 6 o'clock last evening, and left there with their horses about 10 o'clock, or shortly before that hour. It would seem they had for several days been seeking their chance, but for some unknown reason it was not carried into effect until last night. One of them has evidently made his way to Baltimore, the other has not yet been traced.

WASHINGTON, April 15—12 M.

Andrew Johnson was sworn into office as President of the United States, by Chief Justice Chase, to-day at 11 o'clock. Secretary McCulloch and Attorney General Speed and others were present. He remarked: "The duties are mine. I will perform them, trusting in God. Gentlemen, I shall lean upon God.

"I feel that I shall need your support. I am deeply impressed with the solemnity of the occasion, and the responsibility of the duties of the office I am assuming."

Mr. Johnson appeared to be in remarkably good health, and has a high and realizing sense of the hopes that are centered upon him.

The assassin of President Lincoln left behind him his hat and spur. The hat was picked up in the President's box, and has been identified by parties to whom it has been shown as the one belonging to the suspected man, and accurately described by other parties not allowed to see it before describing it.

The spur was dropped upon the stage, and that also has been identified as the one procured at a stable where the same man hired a horse in the evening.

A preliminary examination was made by Mr. Richards and his assistants.

Several persons were called to testify, and the evidence as elicited before an informal tribunal and not under oath, was conclusive to this point: The murderer of President Lincoln was John Wilkes Booth: his hat was found in the private box and identified by several persons who had seen him within the last two days and the spur which he dropped by accident after he jumped to the stage, was identified as one of those which he had obtained from the stable where he hired his horse.

The person who attacked Secretary Seward left behind him a slouched hat, and an old rusty navy revolver. The chambers were broken loose from the barrel as if done by striking. The loads were drawn from the chambers, one being but a rough piece of lead, and the other balls smaller than the chambers, wrapped in paper, as if to keep them from falling out.

WASHINGTON, April 15—11 A. M.

The Star extra says at 20 minutes past seven o'clock the President breathed his last, as a child falling to sleep, and his countenance assuming an expression of perfect serenity.

There were no indications of pain, and it was not known that he was dead until the gradually decreasing respiration ceased altogether.

The President's body was removed from the private residence opposite Ford's Theater to the Executive mansion, this morning at 9:30, in a hearse, and wrapped in the American flag.

It was escorted by a small guard of cavalry, General Augur and other officers followed on foot. A dense crowd accompanied the remains to the White House, where a military guard excluded the crowd, allowing none to enter but persons of the household and personal friends of the President, and those of the premises.

It is expected—though nothing has been definitely determined upon—that the funeral of the late President Lincoln will take place on or about Thursday next.

It is supposed that his remains will be temporarily deposited in the Congressional Cemetery.

New Music.

Mr. John Church, jr., has favored us with that deservedly popular new music, "Sherman's March to the Sea." Words by Adjutant S. H. M. Byers. Music by F. B. Plimpton. Dedicated to Major General W. T. Sherman. The latest music and every variety of musical instruments can be had at Mr. Church's extensive establishment, 66 West Fourth street.

The Enquirer and the Flag—The Debut of Miss Sarah Sherman.

"Better late than never," is an adage I have always believed in—

And so I should think does the Cincinnati Enquirer who has at last thrown its banner to the breeze.

I did hear that gentle force was resorted to in order to induce the Baker street concern to show its colors—

But I trust this is a mistake and of its own free will and accord the banner of beauty and glory was given to the breeze.

The Enquirer building looked odd without our country's emblem floating from its windows—

Now it rejoices in a goodly number of the glorious emblems—

And I rejoice that the editors and proprietors "have thought better of it," and joined in the general celebration—

There is some hope of them yet, if they will only repent in tears and sackcloth and do works meet for repentance—

They are, no doubt, convinced ere this that they have been sinning against light and knowledge and preaching false doctrines—

Proclaiming peace, peace, while there could possibly be no peace save at the sacrifice of our honor as a nation.

We have conquered a peace by the sword alone, and the great rebellion which the Enquirer has helped to foster is now over—

Although that paper predicted it would never cease until the last rebel had indeed found the last ditch,

How prone we are to be mistaken—

Let us trust the Enquirer may hereafter be found battling in the cause of the Union, and that it may know nothing but the Union.

It has sinned greatly and has much to answer for.

But are we not told that

"While the lamp holds out to burn,
The vilest sinner may return," and I am glad to know that there is mercy and pardon for even such sinners as the conductors of the Cincinnati Enquirer—

And if they can be purified and taken again into public favor none need despair—

And even Jeff Davis himself might look for grace and pardon.

I had the pleasure (?) last Monday night to witness the debut of Miss Sarah Sherman, at the National Theater, in the character of Lady Gay Spanker.

It had been given out that she was the niece of Major General Sherman, but before her appearance, for some reason or other, the niece part of the programme was dropped—

And she became simply "Miss Sarah Sherman, of New York"—

Her first appearance on any stage.

She was greeted with but a meager audience and that not a very enthusiastic one.

I do not agree with the critics, that Lady Gay Spanker is such a wonderfully difficult part in which to make a first appearance—

Although it is a character which, to be effective must be well rendered.

A novice might play it respectably, and win a certain amount of praise—

But only a true artist could make out of it a character of life and beauty.

Miss Sherman is not handsome—

She has a capacious mouth, and a low, narrow forehead—

Her figure rather dumpy, although not ungraceful.

Her make-up was not objectionable, although she dressed the character in a dark riding habit.

She was not as awkward as some debutantes I have seen—

And no one could accuse her of a want of self-possession.

Her dress appeared to encumber her feet distressingly, a riding habit at best not being fitted to pedestrian locomotion.

But in dress and feature, form and motion Miss Sherman might have passed muster—

But her voice was terribly against her—

Although in the first scene or two it was not so repugnant as in the closing act.

It is decidedly of the nasal order—

And I should judge that Miss Sherman was a regular down-easter—

At all events, she made a regular Yankee girl out of Lady Gay Spanker—

Although a friend remarked that she talked just like an aunt in Indiana.

And than her laugh!

Heavens! what a laugh!

It still rings in my ears.

It was indeed "linked sweetness long drawn out"—

a regular "ha-ha-ha-a-a-h!"

But a description is impossible—

I never heard the like before, and hope never to hear the like again—

There was nothing natural about it—

And where Miss Sherman ever got it from is a mystery.

As far as the laugh goes, she can certainly claim originality.

With such a voice and such a forced laugh it was impossible for her debut to be a success.

I was also impressed with the idea that Miss Sherman must have witnessed too frequently Chanfrau's impersonation of "Mose"—

And was attempting, in certain scenes, a close imitation.

Miss Sherman, if she seriously contemplates the stage as a profession, and is desirous to shine as a bright particular star in the histrionic firmament, must unlearn a great deal that she has learned.

She has evidently been taught in a bad school.

She is said to be a young lady of fine attainments, of culture and intellect.

She has my best wishes for her ultimate success—

I do not believe that it would be impossible for her to succeed, and one day be considered great in her arduous profession.

If she is indeed sensible, she will take my criticism in kindness, and think I am

"Cruel only to be kind."

And of her I will not say, or even think,

"Thus bad begins,
And worse remains behind."

I did not like Mr. Lingham's "Dazzle"—

His heart did not seem to be in it—

I never saw him appear to so poor advantage.

Don't pull that tile over your brows so man—

You have a good forehead, and needn't be ashamed to show it.

Mr. Loraday's Charles Courtly was well recited, barring the drunken scene.

I am afraid he has not had any very great experience in this line, or he could enact the drunkard more admirably.

Mr. O. L. Allen's Sir Harcourt Courtly was a masterly rendition—

I never saw it surpassed by but one actor—

And that was the greatly-abused McKean Buchanan.

Mr. Allen would be a valuable acquisition to any theater in the land—

He is an actor of rare excellence.

Mr. H. Franklin made too much out of the character of Max Harkaway—

That is, he over acted it—

He might have been boisterous without being repugnant.

Mr. R. O. Smith was the dignified servant to a dignified master—

He might have made more out of the scene with Mark Meddle—

Who had an excellent representative in Mr. J. Burt.

The small part of Pert was made no smaller in the hands of Mrs. Nelson Keene.

I did not fancy the Grace Harkaway of Miss L. Allen—

Nature never fitted her for the character.

Mr. O. H. Tyler's "Dolly Spanker," to speak generally, was only from fair to middling.

I have seen the part in better keeping.

As a general thing Miss Sherman could not complain of lack of efficient support.

She was called before the curtain by a few ludicrous boys, and bowed her thanks—

And thus ended "the event of the season."

I wonder what other "event" the tedious Shires will produce next?

In passing along Sixth street the other afternoon my attention was attracted to a crowd in front of a stable.

Being of rather a curious disposition I called halt and quickly ascertained the cause of the excitement—

It was produced by no late telegraph of an important victory or general surrender—

The capture of Jeff Davis and the rebel Congress—

A man was simply engaged in the operation of trimming a dog's ears.

I didn't wait to see the operation—

Giving up an eligible position to one who seemed to be particularly anxious to witness the sight—

The fifty or sixty persons present must have thought I evinced a great want of taste.

This improvement on nature is both foolish and barbarous.

If the Creator of dogs had been of the opinion they would have appeared to better advantage with their ears trimmed he would have doubtless so sent them into the world.

It's difficult to improve upon nature—

And I look upon the trimming of dogs' ears as a doggish piece of business, at best. To the cutting off of their tails when it is done close to their ears I do not much object—

Particularly in dog days when the dog star rages.

The latest excitement in the circles in oppodom was occasioned by the flight of an inconstant wife of one of our down town merchants.

A well known good looking clerk was taken with a leaving the same time the lady disappeared.

Quite a number, by putting "this and that together" think they have made a discovery—

And profess to believe that Mr. —— and Mrs. —— are enjoying each other's society in one of the Eastern cities.

This may or may not be so—

This is such an inconstant age we live in and war is so demoralizing that I am ready to believe anything I hear.

At all events the affair has created no little excitement.

My sympathies are with the bereaved husband.

How brightly the sun shone yesterday upon a nation's jubilee—

But alas! how dark the night that followed such a morn!

It will be remembered in after ages as the night when horrors were heaped high on horror's head—

The night when a great and good man was assassinated whilst sitting at a play—

The night when the bullet of the murderer found its victim in the President of the United States—

The night when the treason of the South culminated in a deed of damned treachery and murder.

"Murder most foul, as in the best it is;
But this, most foul, strange and unnatural."

The excitement attendant upon the news of this dark and bloody deed beggars description—

Men on the street look at each other with strange faces, and ask each other what will come next?

One whom the nation loved has been cruelly done to death.

God grant that a terrible revenge is not meted out to those who were the traitors to this deed.

Let us all remember that "Vengeance is mine saith the Lord, and I will repay."

I have no heart to write more.

"[illegible] sad woe [illegible] departed!
When Death, like a mighty sea, rises o'er true hearts,
Sweeps through the halls so lately loud with mirth,
And leaves pale sorrow weeping by the hearth."

Yours, tearfully,
IMPECUNIOUS ROUNDABOUT.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.—A correspondent of the Commercial suggests that the new City Council, which convenes in a few days, should bestow its favors, in the shape of offices in its gift, to those soldiers who are unable to perform manual labor, but who could well fulfill the duties of the various subordinate positions about the city buildings. The same suggestion would apply to the Board of City Commissioners, City Treasurer, Auditor, etc. Let those who can turn their attention to other duties give place to our wounded soldiers, who are deserving of all the favors from official bodies possible to bestow. Some of the present incumbents are filling two positions at one and the same time. "Insatiate archer, will not one suffice?"

Consumption.

The following unanswerable letter, from a gentleman of the medical profession, appeared lately in the New York Herald, corroborating the numerous testimonials to the success attending the treatment by "Inhalation" of diseases of the lungs, by Dr. Hunter, now of 201 West Fourth street, Cincinnati:

JEFFERSON STREET, GREEN POINT, }
BROOKLYN, LONG ISLAND. }

To the Editor of the New York Herald.

SIR—For some time past considerable interest has been awakened, both in and out of the profession, by the publication of a series of popular letters from the pen of Dr. Hunter, of New York, on the successful treatment of consumption by inhalation. That these letters manifest a profound acquaintance with medical science and are written in a most attractive style, can not for a moment be questioned, but a matter of far greater importance remained to be tested, namely, whether the application of the principles advocated by Dr. Hunter would be sustained by their success in practice.

Of late, I have observed in several newspapers extracts from the letters of physicians calling on Dr. Hunter for the publication of cases. Now the only matter for consideration is, whether the success of inhalation has been equal to the expectations raised by its announcement, or greater than the practice in common use.

I have myself personally witnessed the recovery of two cases of consumption. They had been for some time under the care of physicians of my own acquaintance, but were gradually sinking into their graves. The first of these cases [Mrs. Johnathan Crane, of Green Point, Brooklyn], was apparently of a hopeless character, a cavity having already formed on the right lung; there was great emaciation; she was unable to walk any distance, and had all the worst symptoms which usually attend cases of phthisis in an advanced stage. Mr. Crane was induced, from the testimony which came under his observation, to put her under the care of Dr. Hunter.

I was anxious to witness the effects of Dr. H.'s treatment by inhalation in her case, as I knew it to be a desperate one. Soon after she began to use the inhalation, I saw a marked evidence of improvement—her breathing became more free, her general health daily improved, and I am too happy to be able to say that this improvement has gone on steadily until she is now in excellent health and spirits, a result which I have no hesitation in saying no other medical treatment known in the profession could possibly have effected in her case. The other case—that of Mr. Griffin, of the same place—was very similar in its character to that of Mrs. Crane. This case I also watched closely, and the result has been equally satisfactory. As a professional man, I was induced at first to give all possible attention to Dr. Hunter's treatment, feeling a very deep interest in his published views on the subject. But I confess I was not at all prepared for the speedy, decided, and unmistakable success which attended it in the two cases.

The effect on my own mind has been such that I could not entertain toward Dr. H., for a moment, the prejudice which too often leads medical men to oppose a new practice. On the contrary, I was led at once to place under his care my own sister-in-law, Miss Wood, also a case of tubercular consumption, similar in character to Mrs. Crane's. Miss Wood was under Dr. Hunter's treatment for about six weeks, and I am happy to say that she, too, is progressing toward a cure in a manner most highly gratifying to myself and all her friends. After these undeniable evidences, coming under my own observation, in so satisfactory a manner, I can not be silent. As a general rule, medical men have a dislike to appearing in the columns of a newspaper on any subject connected with medical practice; there are occasions, however, when it becomes a duty to lay aside those feelings and bear an honest testimony to the truth, and I am rejoiced, as a man who respects his profession, that I have it in my power to bear this ample testimony to the success of Dr. Hunter's treatment in consumption.

Yours, very truly,
R. J. HUSBAND, M. D.

Barcelona Trout and White Fish.—I am now receiving daily, by express, these celebrated fish, which, as a fresh-water fish, are only equaled by the famous brook trout and Chautauqua Lake pickerel; they are dressed before being shipped, and seventy-two hours after they are taken from the nets they are in my store for sale. I have contracted for all the fish taken from these fisheries this season, and am prepared to supply the public in general with all they want. The special attention of proprietors of hotels, eating Saloons, &c., is called to the above facts.
I. O. GESNER,
Corner Fifth and Vine streets.

THE OFFICE.—We know of no place in the city where men do congregate, where they can be rendered more comfortable than at "The Office," on Vine street, East side just above Sixth street, so carefully provided over by Mr. George Ellis, who as a caterer stands unrivaled, and has the happy faculty of making his guests all feel at home. The bar is most bountifully supplied with the very best of wines, ales, liquors and cigars, while a comfortable reading room contains papers from all parts of the world. Drop in this morning and partake of an extra lunch.

SINGULAR EXTRACT.—An enterprising quack has contrived to extract from a sausage a powerful tonic, which he says contains the whole strength of the original bark. He calls it the "sulphate of canine." He anticipates a great popularity for it. It will not become as popular as Fiaig's saloon on Vine street, near Fifth, with those who can appreciate choice old wines, liquors and cigars. He has the best.

☞ THE PLACE TO EXCHANGE GOLD AND SILVER.—A. A. Eyster, No. 271 Central Avenue, pays the highest price for old Gold and Silver. One may be sure of getting full value for cast-off jewelry, &c., at this establishment. All kinds of repairing is also executed by Mr. Eyster and his experienced workmen. A large assortment of Watches and Jewelry kept constantly on hand.

LUNCH.—An extra lunch was spread by Bish Hall on Friday last, but this is nothing extra for Bish. He takes pleasure in catering to his guests, and has the reputation—justly, too—of setting out the best lunch in the city, which is spread both morning and night. He has certainly the very neatest saloon in the city, and his bar is supplied with the choicest of wines, liquors, and cigars. Drop in at his saloon, on Longworth street near Vine, in the Catholic Institute building.

UNION COUGH SYRUP.—We call attention to the advertisement of Dr. Graham, in another column. He manufactures the best Cough Syrup, which from a trial of it ourselves we can recommend to the public. He also manufactures a superior article of Bitters, and other medicines, which cannot be beaten.

LOU BOMAN'S EATING HOUSE.—This popular establishment has been improved and enlarged, and the proprietor is prepared to accommodate any number of persons with warm meals already cooked, at reasonable prices—lower than restaurants. The bar is stocked with the choicest wines, liquors, and cigars. Don't forget to give Lou a call, at No. 99 West Third street, opposite the Burnett House.

Ladies' Dining Saloon.—The Ladies' Dining Saloon attached to the Buckeye Dining Saloon, 170 and 172 Vine street, is now open, where all the delicacies of the season can be had at moderate prices. Ladies will find this a first-class dining saloon, and meals served at all hours, the same as in the Gentleman's Saloon. Entrance 170 Vine street.

METROPOLITAN GIFT BOOKSTORE.—The Metropolitan Gift Bookstore, 124 West Fifth street, is the best and cheapest place in the city to buy all kinds of books, and get free a beautiful gift with each. Address Dunn & Co., Proprietors, for a catalogue.

BOOTS AND SHOES.—Messrs. Hirsch & Scallan, at No. 175 Vine street, are still ready to sell, or make up to order, fine Boots and Shoes. The old friends of the firm are invited to call, while new customers are respectfully solicited to give 175 Vine street a trial.

☞ Fine monuments, tombstones, and every kind of marble work executed in the best manner at the establishment of S. H. Dunning & Co., No. 390 Central Avenue, opposite Court st.

TRY IT.—The pure and unadulterated soda water to be had at the West End Drug Store, corner of Mound and Court streets. It is pronounced by all the best in the city.

MONUMENTS.—The best finished and the largest number of fine monuments in the city are for sale at T. White & Son's, Nos. 255 and 257 Fifth street.

☞ Eye and Ear successfully treated at the American Dispensary, Fourth street, west of Elm.

☞ For Bouquets, Cut flowers and Gold Fish, go to Cook's 197 and 199 Walnut street.

The Grand Jubilee—A Glorious Celebration.

Our city on Friday put on her holiday attire, and arrayed itself in its finest and newest clothes. It, indeed, looked like an army with banners, for in every direction, as far as the eye could see, our country's glorious emblem met the view. Banners and flags of all sizes, but after one fashion, waved from windows, housetops, or were suspended across the different streets. Early in the morning the bells rung, and the cannon thundered, and the citizens poured out into the streets, or busily completed the decorations half finished the night previous. Every third person one met had a roll of red white and blue tissue paper in his or her hand, to be made into stars, or form the tri-color of a wreath to adorn a window or a porch. Little girls, arrayed in white, pleased the eye; finely caparisoned steeds for the Grand Marshal and his assistants pranced over the bowldered streets. Business had gone out of town; and commerce closed its doors; trade stood still—while a great people rejoiced over an actual victory and the prospect of a speedy peace.

We shall not attempt to give a description of the procession—everybody must have seen it, and everybody said the like was never seen in our city before. We were somewhat disappointed in not beholding more civic societies, there being only one or two. Our regiments of National Guards made a fine display, and who among us were not sensibly affected by the appearance of the Invalid Corps, these brave fellows, many of them veterans, who had periled their lives in the nation's defense, and who carried about them the visible manifestations of the dangers they had dared. The displays of the Fire Department and the Butchers' Association were highly creditable. The day itself seemed particularly made for the occasion, being one of remarkable beauty. The houses along the line of procession, and, indeed throughout the city, were handsomely decorated, surpassing all former exhibitions of this character.

Mayor Harris was the efficient Grand Marshal of the occasion, assisted by Colonel E. F. Noyes, Col. D. A. Enyart, Col. A. Moore, Col. N. L. Anderson, Major. M. McDowell, Col. S. H. Dunning, W. P. Wiltsee, Capt. W. H. Gill, E. O. Megrue, Col. A. W. Gilbert and Col. H. G. Armstrong.

At night took place a grand illumination—some of the private residences and public buildings being beautifully illuminated. The City Buildings presented a fine appearance, and the St Nicholas exhibited some illuminated flowers, lately brought by Mr. Roth from Paris. Bon-fires blazed in every direction, while any amount of powder was wasted, it being thought there would not be so great a demand for it in future. Every heart beat light, and the hope of an honorable peace animated the features of all who were indeed true friends to their country. Ah! little did they think while thus rejoicing that the President of the United States and the Secretary of State were the victims of the assassin's bullet and knife. Oh, that so bright a morn should have so dark a close.

We publish below some of the principal features in the procession of Friday.

ORDER OF THE PROCESSION.

1. Police force of the city.
2. General Hooker and staff.
3. Veterans—Fifth Ohio had 100 men; 10th Ohio, 116; 9th Ohio, 200; 28th Ohio, 100; and the Veterans' Society, which is composed of the 2d Kentucky, 11th Ohio, and other regiments turned out 150 men.
4. A 6-pounder brass piece, belonging to General Willich's headquarters.
5. The four city regiments of National Guards.
6. A company of sailors, numbering 75, with three wagons with naval devices, a boat, etc.
7. A large delegation of mounted men from the townships.
8. First Ward had seven wagons, some filled with little girls. Mottoes: "Our Country—Inspected, passed and approved." "United we stand, divided we fall."
9. The Second Ward had only three wagons in the procession.
10. Next to the Second Ward marched the German Turners, dressed in white coats, and numbering 136. They were followed by the Fenian Brotherhood, who turned out 250 strong.
11. The carpenters and moulders—two trades societies.
12. The Fifth Ward sustained its reputation for patriotism by its superior display. One hundred and thirty-five horsemen and twenty-five wagons was a part of the display. A finely-decorated wagon, gotten up at the First District Assessor's office, with devices and mottoes, attracted a good deal of attention. Another wagon carried the First District draft box, with the inscription, "The First District has no use for me;" "The Fifth Ward always leads." The goddess of liberty in one wagon, and Indians in another, were features of the procession.
13. The Eighth Ward had fifteen wagons, and was better provided with mottoes than any other ward. The draft box of the Second District was carried in this part of the procession, with the words—"The joys we've tasted," "Played out." Mottoes—"The Eighth Ward rejoices with the nation." "Let us be liberal to a fellow foe, but let us take good care lest Rebels and traitors again endanger our Country." "Victory and glory to our army and navy." "Independence in 1776; Peace in 1865."
14. The Fourteenth Ward. Motto "Union forever." 20 ambulances filled with soldiers—24 horsemen in the delegation.
15. The Fourteenth was followed by the Sixteenth Ward, which had eight wagons, seventeen horsemen. The wagons were from Lent's circus, and carried a number of girls, pupils of Mr. Oraser, teacher of gymnastics in the public schools, who sang patriotic airs and made a fine display with silk flags. The goddess of liberty (Miss Quinby), was the observed of all observers in this display.
16. The Fifteenth Ward delegation had fifty wagons and thirty five horsemen. Pictures of Fort Sumter in 1861 and 1865 were displayed.
17. Tenth Ward, four wagons, one carrying a bale of cotton with a black man handling the staple, and shouting "Played out." A piece of cannon accompanied this delegation.
18. Ship Carpenters' and Caulkers' Union—fifty-five men.
19. The Seventeenth Ward had 16 wagons and was well provided with mottoes, among which were "1776—England; 1812—England; 1845—Mexico; 1865—Southern Confederacy. Who next?" "Abraham the Faithful" "U. S. G.—U. S. Grant—Uncle Sam's Giant."
20. A delegation in wagons from Sedamsville.
21. Steamboats Mates Benevolent Association. A boat mounted on wheels and a representation of a large cannon made of a steamboat chimney.
22. The Sixth Ward had 20 wagons. One of Dodd's Safes with the words "Our Country's Safe." The Gas Company's wagon had the inscription "Light, Liberty and Union." Motto "We March with Patriotic Fire."
23. The Seventh Ward had 23 horsemen and 4 wagons. One had a temple in which the Goddess of Liberty stood beside a bust of Washington. One of the finest displays in the procession. Another wagon had girls representing all the States. A part of the Seventh Ward exhibition were 40 wagons belonging to ice dealers of the city.
24. The Third Ward had 16 wagons filled with boys and girls
25. The Eleventh Ward included the Mt Auburn delegation of sixty horsemen and five omnibuses filled with people. Sixteen wagons were furnished by the ward.
26. The Eighteenth Ward turned out sixteen horsemen, and the Thirteenth Ward twelve wagons with the oft repeated motto, "Peace on earth, good will to men."
27. The Ninth Ward had one of the splendid bands which appeared at the head of various delegations. One of its wagons was drawn by six fine horses, of a uniform gray color.
28. A part of the Twelfth Ward delegation was the Butchers' Society, numbering 10 mounted men, and, dressed in a loose white gown, presenting a peculiar appearance. Twenty citizens, also on horseback, brought up the rear.
29. The United States and the Adams Express Companies' turn out of horses and vehicles was very fine, which, together with the Fire Departments, extended a distance of a mile.
30. The colored people brought up the rear of the procession. Many of their number, however, withdrew on ascertaining that they could not take the position in the line assigned them—immediately after the Fourteenth Ward. Whose fault this was, we can not say. The manifestation of prejudice by some worthless members of the commands, did not amount to much; yet there were ruffians who would, if they dared, have interfered.

In the German portion of the city this part of the procession was received in a becoming manner—waving of handkerchiefs by the women, and cheers from the men. The colored people turned out in large numbers; hundreds were on foot, and many in wagons and other conveyances. They carried the following mottoes: "No negro rebels." "All men are created of one blood." "God is for us—who can be against us?" "All men are born equal."

THE CASE OF DETECTIVE SEYMOUR BARMORE.—This official, of whose arrest we made mention last week, returned to the city on Saturday week, having been honorably discharged by General Wilcox, at Columbus, whither he was taken on a charge of obtaining money wrongfully, in order to secure leniency to a drafted man who had made his escape. He was confronted with those who had caused his arrest, and freely exonerated from all blame by the General before whom he appeared.

The Dreadful Tragedy in Washington.

THE EFFECT OF THE SAD NEWS UPON OUR CITIZENS.

On Friday our citizens evinced their joy and gladness over recent victories and the prospect of a speedy peace. Yesterday their joy was turned to mourning, and sad indeed was the change. The robes of sorrow were exchanged for those of rejoicing, and flags were draped and hung at half-mast, and funereal emblems marked almost every store, office and private dwelling. The streets were thronged from morning until night, and the bells tolled, and every face gave evidence of the great loss sustained in the sudden taking off of the nation's President, Abraham Lincoln, and the able Secretary of State, William H. Seward. At first we learned only of the death of the President, and then intelligence came of the death of Secretary Seward, and then of his son, Frederick Seward—thus heaping horrors high on horror's head. The wildest of rumors prevailed throughout the city the entire day. The first public manifestation was made by some individuals, who tore down the posters in front of the Opera House, on which was the name of J. Brutus Booth, a brother of the alleged murderer of the President, and who has been performing at Pike's for the past two weeks. The board on which the bill was pasted was torn down and trampled under foot. The arrival of Mr. Pike and the judicious advice and counsel of citizens prevailed, and shortly thereafter, when it was announced that there would be no performance in the afternoon or night, the crowd which had collected quietly dispersed.

We heard of several open mouthed Southern sympathizers being roughly handled for expressing a joy they could not conceal at the dreadful intelligence. But worst of all we heard that, in certain localities there were those in the likeness of fair women—but true fiends at heart—who shouted across the street to each other that they were never so glad in their lives at any thing that had before transpired. Is not this dreadful to contemplate? And what secession fiends are we harboring in our midst! It is understood that Mr. Junius Brutus Booth has left the city. As to his political opinions we know nothing, although it is said he sympathizes with the South, and associates with well known Southern sympathizers. At any rate, it would not be proper to visit the sins of his brother upon his head; but the very name Booth must hereafter be held in utter detestation and abhorrence as that of one who could raise his hand against a true patriot and the head of a great people.

Early yesterday morning General Hooker made his appearance on the street, and, stopping to converse with some acquaintances, he was soon surrounded by a large concourse of excited citizens, who followed him for some distance, anxious to learn if further news had been received concerning the dreadful tragedy at the capital.

The principal stores in the city were closed. Our citizens had no heart to pursue their ordinary avocations. The newspaper offices were thronged, and crowds loitered about their doors. Mr. T. D. Jones, the sculptor, was called upon to finish copies of his admirable bust of the dead President, and these were draped and to be seen in numerous localities. The managers of Pike's Opera House and Wood's Theater decided it was no time for giving mimic representations of life when such direful tragedies were being enacted almost in their very midst. Every thing animate and inanimate wore a gloomy appearance, and nature seemed to share in the general sorrow and mourning.

We understood that a man was knocked down with a brick on the corner of Fourth and Sycamore, for expressing disloyal sentiments; and also that an individual at the Merchants Hotel in front thereof, was cut in the face for rejoicing in the death of the President. He made good his escape from an excited crowd. We also heard rumors that several individuals had been killed on the streets, but could trace them to no responsible source. We also were informed, late last night, that the keeper of a millinery establishment on Fifth street, was so jubilant over the news that she cheered heartily, and going to her trunk got out a likeness of Booth, the murderer, and rapturously kissed it. One of her workwomen told her she ought to be ashamed of herself. A regular battle ensued, in which the boss milliner got worsted. Her husband then took the matter in hand and whipped the girl, and the landlord of the house pitched in and whipped the husband. So the story runs.

A party of Germans, numbering several hundred, at about 9 o'clock visited the residence of Dr. Fries, corner of Eighth and Vine streets, and compelled him to pull down his flag, (the stars and stripes,) which had been given to the breeze only yesterday. They declared it should not wave over his house or any d——d secessionists. They carried the flag off in triumph. This, we are afraid, is but the beginning of the end—excitement against well known Southern sympathizers running extremely high, and only need sparks like these to be fanned into a blaze.

The mob then proceeded to the residence of Dr. Homburg, on Walnut street, above Twelfth, and after breaking in his office windows, left without committing any further damage. The store of another notorious secessionist on the corner of Elm and Fifteenth streets, was also visited, but the efforts of the police prevented any damage being done there.

The nearest approach to a serious result from the prevailing excitement, was the case of an individual who got into a difficulty with a drunken man near the Times Office, about four o'clock in the afternoon. The bystanders, seeing a man assaulted, immediately concluded he was a secession sympathizer, and some five or six pitched into him. He was rescued by the police who conveyed him to the Hammond Street Station for safe keeping, where it was ascertained that the victim of misdirected zeal was as loyal a man as any who assaulted him.

The instances of females exulting over the news of yesterday are numerous. "Sweet woman" presumes on her sex to be exempt from popular indignation; hence she says and does things that would, if done by men, cost them their lives. Some female Secessionists, on Longworth street, would not put up a flag on Friday and on Saturday morning openly exulted over the assassination of our revered President. The boys living on the square decided to put up the flag, draped in mourning, from the roof—a point the Farsells were unable to reach. The insignia of mourning was placed there, and the young "ladies" could only vent their spleen on the lads by calling names. The services of a watchman were called upon, but on seeing how things stood, he patriotically declined interfering.

To the Citizens of Cincinnati.

The undersigned would respectfully invite their fellow-citizens to meet at Mozart Hall on Monday evening, April 17, 1865, at 8 o'clock to give suitable expression to our feelings for the loss we in common with the whole country have sustained by the cowardly assassination at the hands of a rebel emissary, of our honored and lamented Chief Magistrate, Abraham Lincoln: Benjamin Eggleston, Robert M Johnston, F. Halliday, W. E. Davis, D. E. Enyart, F J Mayer, R M Corwine, Oh Fosdick, A S Butterfield, A F Perry, T P Saunders, Jas Watson, A N Wiswell, Thomas Spooner, Samuel Stokes, J D Riemeyer, Chas Jacobs Jr, N Bartlett, A G Sands, B Storer, R H Stephenson, N Patterson, Enoc D Reed, M E Jacobi, Dan Wolf, H H Leavitt, W Glenn, P Gibson, T G Odiorne, W W Scarborough, George Borgel, E G Megrue, J H Lawrence, A T Butler, G B Davis, Len A Harris, Th H Weasner, J J Torrence, S L Hayden, J W Sands, Richard Smith, S N Pike, H G Armstrong, S S Davis, W P Wiltsee, J A Gano, Fisman Ball, J D Caldwell, R M W Taylor, Henry Mack, James Dalton, M P Gaddis, M Greenwood, A E Chamberlain, Thos K Poage, J Rickup, O H Geoffroy, Robt Allison, O W Lindeman, C W Starbuck, M B Hagans, Henry Kessler, L M Rogers, F Stevenson, L O Weir, E F Noyes.

BENCKENSTEIN'S GARDEN.—This well known and popular resort will be closed to-day, in consequence of the nation's sad bereavement in the death of President Lincoln. During the week and on next Sunday it will be open as usual. This is one of the finest places to visit that we are cognizant of. Beautiful flowers and shrubbery adorn the walks, and a pleasant hour can be passed in the enjoyment of nature's [illegible] gifts. The bar is supplied with the very best of ales, wines, liquors and cigars.

OETZ'S GARDEN.—This institution, in the vicinity of the Brighton House, below Benkenstein's Garden, is now in full blast, and one of the first resorts for pleasure-seekers that we know of. The bar is always well supplied with the choicest of wines, ales and liquors and cigars, while it is a pleasure to walk through the beautiful grounds and inhale the odors of the rare exotics. Rooms for private parties can be had upon the shortest possible notice. Take the cars or take a pleasant stroke and visit Getz, the amiable Getz, who knows how to cater to his customers.

UNEQUALED INDUCEMENTS.—To patronize the great Metropolitan Gift Bookstore, 124 West Fifth street. Call and see for yourselves, or send for the Mammoth Catalogue and copy of the Literary Gazette.

PRIZE PACKAGES.—The great Metropolitan Gift Stationary Package, for sale by Dunn & Co., 124 West Fifth street. Agents make $15 per day. Send for circular.

Theatrical and Musical Melange.

PIKE'S OPERA HOUSE—MRS F. W. LANDER.—On Monday night Mrs. F W. Lander, formerly Miss J. M. Davenport, will make her debut. This lady is the widow of the lamented General Lander, who lost his life in the service of his country. Mrs. Lander, like a ministering angel devoted a good portion of her time in visiting our wounded soldiers in the hospitals around Washington, cheering them with her presence and caring for their wants as far as was in her power. She herself has seen and suffered and is the more capable of depicting on the mimic stage the characters she essays. There is a great curiosity to see this lady and all feel interested in her for the associations which dwell around her revered name, recalling to mind the gallant deeds of her noble hero-husband. The Opera-house will be crowded during her engagement. She will appear on Monday night as Pauline, in the "Lady of Lyons." It would be well to secure seats during the day.

WOOD'S THEATER.—We call attention to the card of Wood's Theater in this issue. The gentlemanly managers had not the heart to open their doors last night, when the entire city was in mourning. Miss Laura Keene is announced for this week.

PALACE GARDEN.—Fresh novelties have been prepared for this week which cannot fail to attract large audiences. See advertisement in another column.

COMPLIMENTARY CONCERT TO E. M. POWERS, Esq.—This Concert, which was to have taken place to-morrow night, has been indefinitely postponed, on account of the sad bereavement of the nation. Due notice will be given when it is to take place.

OHMER'S ZOOLOGICAL GARDEN.—Owing to the unfavorable weather, the Zoological Hall, at Ohmer's garden, was not open last week; but will be open to visitors hereafter. The numerous collections of animals, birds—both foreign and domestic—his large stereoscopic instrument and Cosmorama, with a splendid collection of war and other views, are well worth seeing. His is the only zoological garden in the West. It is open every day in the week. Persons with their families can visit it. Prominent grounds are handsomely fitted up, the enjoyment of all, and swings especially for your children. Ice creams, Lemonade and refreshments of all kinds—nothing stronger sold. The gardens are located at the terminus of the Pendleton and Fifth street railroad. Admission to the Hall, 10cts.

THE NEW SIXTH STREET MUSEUM.—The new museum of Professor Hutchings is still patronized by the whole community and elicits the admiration of every one who has visited it. With the extensive collection of curiosities, the wild animals, birds, paintings, &c., you can pass an hour where you will have both instruction and amusement combined. The Professor is acknowledged to stand at the head in his line, and his energy and perseverance in trying to make the place A No. 1 is spoken of by every one in the highest praise. We hope our citizens will manifest their interest in the prosperity of the museum by liberally extending their patronage, as he makes every effort to please. He is now enlarging the inside rooms and making another large hall for animals of all kinds, birds, &c., which will arrive from the East in a few days. The paintings recently added to the outside with many other improvements have been very costly. Among them is one of General Sherman, which is acknowledged to be one of the finest works of art. Another of General Washington is very correct, and it is seldom that we have an opportunity to look upon as well an executed painting as this. A third one is "The Chamber of Death;" it strikes us as particularly fine. The stereoscopic views and many other things in the museum are splendid but we have neither time nor space to speak of them separately, as we should like to do, and we would advise our readers to go and see for themselves.

The Olympic Varieties is still meeting with great success. The plays are produced in excellent style, and the actors are among the best in the profession. We hope they will continue to have crowded houses.

WOMBELL'S MENAGERIE.—We are pleased to know that this fine collection of wild and rare animals, on Vine street, between Fourth and Fifth, under the careful and judicious management of Dr. Kerr, is being so well patronized. Throngs visit it daily, and are delighted with the wonders of the animal creation they there behold. The liberal-hearted Doctor concluded to devote the entire proceeds of one day to the deserving poor of the city, being placed in the hands of our worthy Mayor for distribution.

BREVITIES.

In view of the glorious news of the surrender of Lee and his entire army, Judge Warren, of the Police Court, on Monday morning expressed his intention of being merciful to the unfortunates who came before him, and in his subsequent decisions tempered justice with mercy. His remarks did credit to his head and heart.

The citizens of the Second Congressional District on last Friday presented the Rev. M. P. Gaddis, for services in said district, of which he is the Commissioner, a splendid horse and carriage, valued at one thousand dollars. The presentation was made at the residence of Jas Dalton, Esq.

The churches, generally throughout the city will be appropriately decorated to-day, and it is expected the respective pastors will revert to the great calamity that has befallen us as a nation.

The regular packet boats plying between this port and Louisville, have reduced the price of passage to three dollars, by the 12 M. boat, and two dollars by the 5 P. M. boat. Rates of travel and everything else must come down now that the so-called Southern Confederacy be toppled.

The State billiard tournament will be commenced in Mozart Hall, on the 22d of May, and is expected to last one week. Those who design competing for the golden cue, valued at $250, will have to enroll their names by the 10th prox. The award to the second best player will be a pair of silver goblets.

The citizens of the Fifteenth Ward gave a supper to their Draft Committee on Thursday night, at the St. Nicholas. Mayor Harris presided, assisted by S S. Davis, Esq. Toasts were drank, and responses made by Major General Hooker, Mayor Harris, Judge Dickson, R. H. Stone, Esq., M Halstead, etc., and a letter read from Major General Rosecrans, regretting his inability to be present. There was a good time generally.

OUR BOOK TABLE.

THE NEW PATH—a monthly Art Journal—April. New York: James Miller, successor to C. S. Francis.

This number of this excellent monthly contains a well written criticism on Mr. Homer's Statue of Zenobia, which we have perused with both pleasure and profit. The author wields the pen with a fluency and an earnestness in his subject truly refreshing—while it is treated in a spirit of candor, with no desire to needlessly offend, but rather to encourage to nobler aspirations. We have not seen a criticism for years, or since the death of Edgar A. Poe, that has given us more food for thought, or the reading of which afforded us more pleasure. There is also a very good paper on "Our Furniture;" and the painter Powell, lately commissioned by Congress to paint a picture "on some national subject," is stirred up with the point of a very sharp pen. By the way, we believe this is the same artist who has been commissioned by our State Legislature to paint a picture, for which the sum of fifteen thousand dollars has been appropriated. Powell's in luck. In alluding to this artist's picture of "De Soto discovering the Mississippi," now in the Capital at Washington, the New Path says: "That work is so discreditable to the man who could paint it, and to the people who could allow it to be bought, that we hoped, even to the last, that we might be saved from a repetition of the experiment."

Fifteen thousand dollars is a pretty good sum to invest in a painting, which at best can be seen by few of the ordinary populace. Would it not have been better for our wise legislators to have commissioned a sculptor like T. D. Jones, of our city, and ordered a statue of one of our heroes, whose noble efforts are bringing about the restoration of the Union—a statue that could have been erected in some public space, either at Columbus or in our own good Queen City, to which all could point with a feeling of pride, recalling noble deeds in the great battle for union, liberty and freedom?

The New Path, which is head and shoulders above many more pretentious journals, can be procured of R. W. Carroll & Co., Opera House Book Store.

MEETING AT MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE.

At the meeting of merchants yesterday, the chair was occupied by Geo. F. Davis. A dispatch from New York was read stating that business was entirely suspended. Mr. Davis then addressed the meeting in a feeling manner with respect to the great calamity that has befallen the nation. He was followed by Judge Storer. We regret our space does not allow us to give the remarks of the speakers. A Committee of five, consisting of Ben Eggleston, S. C. Newton, A. M. Searles, Richard Smith, and John A. Gano, were appointed to draft resolutions expressing the feelings of the Chamber of Commerce on the death of President Lincoln, to report at a meeting to be held on Monday.

WASHINGTON, April 15.

An autopsy was held this afternoon over the body of President Lincoln by Surgeon-General Barnes and Dr. Stone, assisted by other eminent medical men. The coffin is of mahogany, is covered with black cloth and lined with lead; the latter being covered with white satin; a silver plate upon the coffin over the breast bears the following inscription: "Abraham Lincoln Sixteenth President of the United States. Born July 12th, 1809. Died April 15th, 1865."

The remains have been embalmed. A few locks of hair were removed from the President's head for the family previous to the remains being placed in the coffin.

NEW YORK, April 15.

The Commercial states that we have ascertained from a source perfectly reliable, that during a conversation yesterday among members of a Spanish firm, to this city, it was stated that on to-day the greatest news would be received that had yet been made known to the public.

The fact of the statement was communicated to General Peck this morning by the clerk of the establishment.

Special to the Tribune says, J. Wilkes Booth was arrested about nine o'clock this morning near Fort Hastings, on Bladensburg road. He rapidly approached our pickets, was arrested and brought to the city.

[This is not confirmed by any official dispatches from Washington up to nine o'clock this Saturday evening.—Reporter.]

The same special says Secretary Seward has given a detailed description of the assassin. It is evident he was a different person from the President's murderer.

Frederick Seward is in a most critical condition, and surgeons are removing the broken fragments of his skull. A private dispatch to Mr. Seward's nephew in this city, from a member of the family, says: "I have just left Mr. Seward's house. His wounds are not mortal. He has lost much blood, but no arteries cut."

Frederick's skull is fractured badly in two places above the temple. He is insensible, and it is feared that he will die.

Secretary Seward's throat would have been cut if he had not rolled out of bed. He has been informed of Mr. Lincoln's death.

Another private dispatch states that Frederick Seward is out of danger.

Major Seward is not dangerously wounded.

Several impromptu street meetings have been held to day, addressed by prominent gentlemen; the unanimous expression being to hold the rebel leaders to a just account for their crimes.

Two men, expressing respect for Jeff Davis, were driven out of a newspaper counting-room and hunted by the crowd, they seeking safety in flight.

The steamship Etna sailed at 5:30 this afternoon, with full official dispatches from Washington to our ministers at foreign ports. An official dispatch was also sent out, per Nova Scotia, from Portland.

Bishop Potter has issued an address to all clergymen, appointing appropriate prayers to be read to-morrow, and recommending clothing of the churches in mourning.

WASHINGTON, April 15.

The second extra of the Evening Star says Col. Ingraham, Provost Marshal of the defenses of the mouth of the Potomac is engaged in taking the testimony to-day; all of which fixes the assassination on J. Wilkes Booth. Judge Olin of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia and Justice Miller are also engaged to day at the Police Headquarters on Tenth street, in taking the testimony of a large number of witnesses. Lieut. Tyrrel of Col. Ingraham's staff last night proceeded to the National Hotel, where Booth has been stopping, and took possession of his trunk, in which was found a colonel's military dress coat, two pairs of handcuffs, two boxes of cartridges and a package of letters; all of which are now in the possession of the military authorities. One of these letters, bearing the date of Hookstown, Md. It seems to implicate Booth. The writer speaks of the mysterious affair in which you are engaged, and urges Booth to proceed to Richmond and ascertain the views of the authorities thereupon. The writer of the letter endeavored to persuade Booth from carrying his designs into execution at that time, for the reason, as the writer alleges, that the Government had its suspicions aroused.

The writer of the letter seems to have been implicated with Booth in the mysterious affair referred to, as he informs Booth in the letter that he would prefer to express his views verbally, and then goes on to say that he was out of money, had no clothes and would be compelled to leave home, as his family were desirous that he should dissolve his connection with Booth. This letter is written on note paper, in a small neat hand, and simply bears the signature "Sam."

At the Cabinet meeting yesterday, which lasted over two hours, the future policy of the Government towards Virginia was discussed. The best feeling prevailing. It is stated that it was determined to adopt a very liberal policy, as was recommended by the President. It is said that this meeting was the most harmonious held for two years. The President exhibiting throughout that magnanimity and kindness of heart which has ever characterized his treatment of the rebellious States, and which has been so illy requited on their part. One of the members of the Cabinet remarked to a friend that he met at the door: "The Government was to-day stronger than it has been for three years past."

BOSTON, April 15.

Edwin Booth has been plunged into the deepest grief by the desperate act of his brother, and it is telling fearfully upon his sensitive nature. To-night he was to have taken his farewell of the Boston public for a time, but it is said he has expressed a determination never to appear upon the stage again.

WASHINGTON, April 15.

The Richmond Whig of yesterday, contains the following:

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF VIRGINIA, RICHMOND, April 13.—Owing to recent events, the permission for reassembling of gentlemen recently acting as the Legislature of Virginia, is rescinded. Should any of the gentlemen come to the city under the notice of reassembling, published, they will be furnished passports to return to their homes. Any of the persons named in the call signed by J. A. Campbell and others who are found in the city twelve hours after the publication of this notice, will be subject to arrest, unless they are residents of this city.
E. O. C. ORD,
Major General Commanding Department.

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF VIRGINIA, ARMY OF THE JAMES, RICHMOND, April 13.—General Orders 37. Provost Marshals will grant no passes to citizens from the North, or to officers to come to this city, except on orders from the President, Secretary of War, General Grant, or Department Commanding officers; and soldiers now in the city will return to their respective commands at once, or be subject to arrest and confinement. The Provost Marshal General is charged with the execution of this order.
By command of Major General Ord,
E. W. SMITH, A. A. G.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 15.

A mob just entered the publication offices of the Democratic Press, News Letter, Monitor, and Occidental, Copperhead journals, and emptied their contents into the streets amidst the applause of an immense crowd. A large body of armed police was ordered out, but arrived too late to prevent these acts of violence. The destruction of other Democratic offices is threatened.

NEW YORK, April 15.

The Stock Board adjourned without calling the roll. The Gold Room immediately following the example, and all brokers' offices were closed at 11 o'clock. The banks, by common agreement, closed their doors at noon. All stocks and gold contracts maturing to day stand over for settlement to Monday.

A few greedy speculators met on the street and made some quotations. Sales were made from 150 to 157 for gold, but men soon desisted either from common decency or fear of public opinion. Two petroleum boards met, but immediately adjourned without doing any business. At the Produce Exchange a few brief speeches were made when an adjournment was had.

The Tribune's Washington special says that General Lee confessed to Grant that Johnston's entire force would not number more than ten thousand.

The War Department continues to refuse passes to Richmond to all applicants. Reporters and journalists all share the same fate.

The Navy Department issues proposals to day for raising, on Government account, sunken blockade runners along the coast.

The Government is in hourly expectation of important news from Sherman.

Lee has not yet passed to Johnston's army, but it is expected he will communicate with Johnston, and advise surrender on the terms granted the Army of Northern Virginia.

WASHINGTON, April 15.

The last writing done by the President was addressed to Hon. Geo. Ashmeed, in reply to a request of the latter for an interview. The message was written upon a card on the President's knee in his carriage, about quarter past eight, just as he was starting for the theater. The note was as follows:

"Allow Mr. Ashmead and friend to come to me at 9 A. M. to-morrow."
APIL 15, 166.

About 12 o'clock last night two men crossed the Anacosta Bridge, one of whom gave his name as Booth, and the other as Smith; the latter is believed to be John Surratt. Last night a riderless horse was found, which has been identified by the proprietor of one of the stables previously mentioned, as having been hired from his establishment.

Accounts are conflicting as to whether Booth crossed over the bridge on horseback or on foot; but it is believed that he rode across. It is presumed that he had exchanged his horse.

From information in the possession of the authorities, it is evident that the scope of the plot was intended to be much more comprehensive. The Vice President and other prominent members of the Administration were particularly inquired for by suspicioned parties, and their precise localities ascertained; but, providentially in their cases, the scheme miscarried.

A boat was at once sent down the Potomac to notify the gunboats in the river of the awful tragedy, in order that all possible means should be taken for the arrest of the perpetrators. The most ample precautions have been taken, and it is not believed the culprits will long succeed in evading the overtaking arm of justice.

NEW YORK, April 15.—The Post's Washington special says that Mr. Hansell, the messenger of the State Department, who was in attendance upon Mr. Seward is dead. Secretary Seward is in a very precarious condition.

It is reported that Booth was captured this morning. The story is that his horse threw him and injured him so severely that he was obliged to seek relief in a house on the Seventh street road.

The Post also publishes a dispatch to Clarence A. Seward, which says Mr. Seward's wounds are bad but not mortal. He is composed. He has lost much blood, but no arteries are cut. Frederick's skull is fractured badly in two places above the temple, and I fear will die. His brother's wounds are very slight. The Governor's throat would have been cut if he had not rolled out of bed.

LATER.

The Doctor says that Frederick's condition is highly critical, but not hopeless.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—There is no confirmation of the report that the murderer of the President has been arrested. Among the circumstances tending to fix a participation in the crime on Booth were letters found in his trunk, one of which, apparently from a lady, supplicated him to desist from the perilous undertaking in which he was about to embark.

Extra intelligence says, that from the evidence obtained it is rendered highly probable that the man who stabbed Mr. Seward and his sons is John Surrat, of Prince George county, Maryland. The horse he rode was hired at Naylor's stable, on Fourteenth street. Surrat is a young man with light hair and goatee; his father is said to have been postmaster of Prince George county.

BUFFALO, April 15.

The Governor of New York has issued a proclamation revoking the proposed thanksgiving for recent victories, on April 20th, and changing it to one of prayer and humiliation for our great affliction.

[OFFICIAL.]

WAR DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, }
April 15—3 P. M. }

Major General Dix:

Official notice of the death of the late President, Abraham Lincoln, was given by the heads of the Departments this morning to Andrew Johnson, Vice President, upon whom the Constitution devolved the office of President. Mr Johnson, upon receiving this notice, appeared before the Hon. S. P. Chase, Chief Justice of the United States, and took the oath of office as President of the United States, and assumed its duties and functions.

At 12 o'clock the President met the Heads of Departments in Cabinet meeting, at the Treasury Building, and among other business the following was transacted:

First, the arrangements for the funeral of the late President were referred to the several Secretaries, as far as pertained to their respective departments.

Second, William Hunter, Esq., was appointed Acting Secretary of State during the disability of Mr. Seward and his son Frederick Seward the Assistant Secretary.

Third, the President formally announced that he desired to retain the present Secretaries of Departments of his Cabinet, and they would go on and discharge their respective duties in the same manner as before the deplorable event that has changed the Head of the Government. All business in the Departments was suspended during the day. The surgeons report that the condition of Governor Seward remains unchanged. He is doing well. There is no improvement in Mr. Frederick Seward. The murderers have not yet been apprehended.
E. M. STANTON, Secretary of War.

The Feeling in Other Cities.

We have received dispatches from St. Louis, Cairo, Pittsburg, Wheeling, Columbus, etc. A gloom pervades the entire communities; business was suspended, and houses draped in mourning. All classes sympathised in the nation's great calamity. At Toronto, C. W., the news caused profound sensation. The flags on the American Consulate, shipping in harbor and custom house are all at half-mast. Stores and places of business of Americans are closed, and the feeling of grief by the Canadian people is intense, and they contemplate giving due public expression thereto. The Governor of Iowa has issued an address to the citizens, full of patriotism, and renewing his pledge to support the Government, which was so faithfully represented by President Lincoln and Secretary Seward, and appoints the 27th as a day of humiliation and prayer. The Governor of Nova Scotia has also a message condoling with our nation's loss, and has temporarily suspended legislative business.

☞ The Adams Express Company will accept our thanks for late New York papers. This company, at this point under the superintendence of Mr. L. H. Weir, is always foremost in every good word and work.

SUIT IN THE U. S. DISTRICT COURT.—John Stop was tried on Thursday last, for violation of the Internal Revenue law. He is a manufacturer of matches, and sold several gross without the proper stamps being affixed. The jury returned a verdict yesterday in favor of plaintiff, damages $360.

POSTPONEMENT OF SALE.—The sale of that splendid residence, No. 502 Freeman street, advertised for yesterday afternoon, was postponed, until further notice, in consequence of the dreadful calamity that has befallen the country; due notice of sale will be given.

The property of this Company consists of 63 Leases conferring exclusive right to the Petroleum and various other valuable substances contained in an aggregate of over 8,000 acres of land in Preble county, Ohio. The Capital Stock represents and is based upon 47 of these leases, covering in the aggregate nearly 4,800 acres. The duration averages 8 years, and the whole rent on royalty to be paid by the Company is one eighth of the crude oil produced.

As no single Company can fully develop one-half of this territory, a considerable portion of the Capital Leases as well as 16 others specially reserved for the purpose, will be sold for the benefit of the stockholders; and the remarkable prices already realized from sales of contiguous territory, warrant confident expectations of handsome profits from this source alone.

Upon the lands of the Company, oil springs, seepand issues from quarries and clefts of rocks abound: also fossiliferous limestone, bituminous shale and sandstone impregnated with Petroleum. These lands are only about 55 miles from Cincinnati, upon the Chicago Air Line Railroad.

The almost invariable testimony of many practical and experienced oil men who have visited these lands is, that the present surface indications of oil, seldom equaled and scarcely ever excelled in the most prolific oil regions on the continent. Several wells are now in progress in the immediate vicinity of the Company's lands, and are daily revealing increased evidences of Oil.

The by-laws of the Company strictly prohibit the creation of any debts, and the assessment, or call, upon stockholders beyond the price of their stock. Therefore in order to provide at once a working fund of $40,000, it is proposed to sell 1,600 shares of the Capital stock at $25 per share, the par value being $50 per share. The fund thus produced is considered sufficient, in any contingency, to advance operations to the point whence the produce of the Wells and the proceeds of the Leases sold will become available, and as the company intend to studiously shun dividends based on stock sales and all fictitious or speculative transactions in stocks, there is no probability that any further portion of the stock will be offered at less than its par value.

Remittances for stock may be made and inquiries addressed to H. C. HEISTAND, Esq., Treasurer, at principal office, First National Bank Eaton, Ohio; A. WINSTON, Esq., Director, at Cincinnati office No. 74 West third street, Cincinnati, Ohio; C. W. STEWART, Esq., at Covington office of the Farmers Bank of Kentucky, Covington, Ky.; or, R. M. POMEROY, Esq., Vice President, Nos. 65 and 67 Pearl street, Oregon Block, Boston, Mass.

Certificates of Stock will be forwarded immediately upon receipt of the money. ap9-4t
